If you've participated in several DE days and know how to drive the line, the easy speed gains are behind you and you're probably making only incremental improvements. But once again, it's data (and apps) to the rescue... affording mere mortals the kind of performance insights previously reserved for race teams

Use data analysis and phone app based tools to improve driver performance

- Listen to real world experience using analysis software and laptimer apps.
- Learn about best practices while at the track.
